SCOTT'S SKETCHES

2007 Goals & Visions

Each year whether we make formal resolutions or not, most of us think about the things we might change in our lives that will make life better, more fulfilling or simple just different from the past year.

Each year I establish some personal goals & spend a lot of time thinking about professional goals. As an example I use to set reading goals both personal & professional. I would often struggle to get that one book a month read that was for leisure or business.

As for your staff, I asked them to put forth one personal & at least one professional goal for 2007. To date they all have done some work on this & I have their information on file. Likewise your various leadership committees are hard at work setting up goals & dreams for 2007.

The Trustees offered three improvement goals at their January meeting last week. SPRC has set goals to accomplish some better guidelines for our Staff in 2007. The Finance committee is looking at ways to shore up our weaknesses in its area of service. We are trying to better communicate with our top program in the TLC/Pre-school.

The Youth have plans; the Kids for Christ group are putting things on the calendar.

STARS are going to continue to meet on the Fourth Monday of each month with a program designed to inform & educate.

The Music program will expand into a new choir for First through Sixth graders before January ends.

The Church Council will have had its retreat and will have new events on our calendars. The UMM & UMW are planning fundraisers & dinners to help mission projects succeed.

All of these things take time, energy, planning & execution. All of these will also benefit from your prayer support and willingness to participate.

Years ago I learned I am not able to set goals for anyone other than myself. You know how much you would like to set goals for family or coworkers or others who lack direction, but you can't do it for them. They must buy into the goal in order for that goal to have a life changing effect on them.

Please be willing to look at our various goals & visions for 2007. We will have printed lists of things we hope to do. Your service, presence, gifts & prayers will make many of these a reality. Support ST John's, please.
